Prologue

Impressions . . .

Mere reflections

Which form the memories of tomorrow,

A complex stone building

The cheers and cries of school spirit

The agonies and exaltations

That accompany knowledge.

Victory and defeat

Mingling together to form

One

Unforgettable

Experience —

Central High School.

Silhouetted against a cloudless sky,
 Erect in an aura of achievement,
     Cherished,
     Despised,
     Remembered . . .
 These are the Towers,
     Storehouses of knowledge,
     Reservoirs of memories,
     Earners of achievement.
     Living . . .
     Yet only
         Mute
         Polished
         Stone.

“Victory!”

We scream and it is so cold
That the breath comes hard,
But the pigskin flies,
Bearing with it our Hopes and Fears.

The “snap” of a bat—

The rasp of air in aching lungs—

Healthy sounds of Competition.

Heavy-laden defeats

Spirit-inspired victories

Interdependent

Each a part of one another

Each a segment of competition

Each a lesson in Maturity.

Above the towers,
 About the playing fields,
 Forming a kind of aura—
 Never quite lost in combat—
 There is always that
 Intangible
 Yet very real
 Quest for knowledge,
 Understanding,
 Power—
 Synonymous and sought by all
 Freely offered here.
 Whether on playing field
 Or in classroom,
 These Towers are
 Citadels of knowledge.

This, then, is Central High . . .
 Wisdom gleaned through experience
 And experience gained through
 Day-by-day encounters
 In these hallowed halls.
 Three brief years,
 Like unto a round jigsaw puzzle,
 Frustrating,
 Complicated,
 Fulfilling,
 An essential part of our
 Constant, compelling, agonizing
 Search for ourselves.

We Dedicate . . .

To you the students of Central High
We dedicate our 1967 Pemican.

To you,

A student body of "yes" ideas,

Wholesome fears

Bright exuberations

A student body crying triumphantly,

"We're from High Point

And we couldn't be prouder!"

ADMINISTRATION . . Board and officials

John W. Clinard, Jr.
Chairman of Board
High Point City Schools

Along with a multiplicity of current duties, High Point's city school board and administration found time to formulate long-range plans for school improvement. Chief among these was the completion of details for the construction of a new high school in 1968. Other projects included improved facilities at Central High School and the purchase of educational materials.

Appointed by the city council, the school board represented High Point's four wards, with three members to serve at large. Each member was chosen to serve for a seven-year term, with the privilege of re-appointment. Officers included Mr. John W. Clinard, chairman, and Mrs. Florence Womack, vice-chairman. Mr. A. Laurin Welborn was appointed during the year to replace Mr. Clyde Carden, who resigned.

Counselors help students to achieve goals

Interpreting Iowa tests becomes clear to Carolyn Amos as she discusses her score with Mrs. Harris.

Conducting group tests, advising students, and sponsoring both the College Day and Career Day programs were among the important items of the guidance program this year. In addition to her duties as Senior Class adviser and keeper of the school calendar, Miss Frances Haywood gave valuable advice to individual seniors on choice of college or vocation. Mrs. Evelyn Harris counseled juniors and assisted them with their programs of study, while Mrs. Janet McCurry aided sophomores in making adjustments to their new environment at Central High.

Other duties of the guidance staff included assisting seniors with scholarship applications, compiling records for college transcripts, maintaining a veritable library of up-to-date information on college and vocations, and counseling students concerning personal problems.

Dean, secretaries aid in solving problems

Dean Ralph H. Vance, important in the daily life of High Point Central, had a very busy year. The dean of students was responsible for the handling of check-outs and tardies, and for keeping records of student attendance. His work as a disciplinary official emphasized responsible student citizenship. In addition, he served as summer school director. Mrs. Lee Hocutt was his able office assistant.

In the flow of school activity, two people stood out among the rest — Mrs. Johnsie Jackson, secretary and co-treasurer of the school, and Mrs. Doris Teague, secretary to the principal. Mrs. Jackson, in addition to money matters, took care of the telephone, and sorted the mail. Mrs. Teague handled correspondence, filed records, processed blue sheets, and prepared college transcripts for seniors.

Dean Ralph Vance checks the attendance bulletin with secretary Mrs. Hocutt and student Mary Bean.

Counting money for the deposit is a daily duty of Mrs. Johnsie Jackson, popular secretary-treasurer of CHS.

Responding pleasantly to a telephone message, Mrs. Teague, secretary, transacts a business item of the day.

Editors of Opus 67 make layout plans for Central's newest publication — the literary magazine.

Members of Miss Denny's senior English class plan a panel discussion to emphasize dictionary skills.

CURRICULUM . . .

English offers regular courses,

Sophomores make rapid progress in reading comprehension under the careful supervision of Mrs. Rives.

Striving for mastery in all English classes, Central High students explored the general aspects of literature, grammar, and composition. Sophomores entering Central High's English program found drills and themes to be written, and plays, poetry, biography, and fiction to be read. Juniors studied American literature and sought original topics for themes. Seniors found the new English course — advanced composition — a real challenge to their power of expression. Careful screening gave English students on all class levels the opportunity to exercise their talents and develop their skills.

This year a new venture in writing was launched — Central High School's literary magazine — entitled Opus 67. The advanced composition class played a major part in selecting material and writing for the magazine. The first issue of the publication was scheduled to come off the press during the spring semester.

Sophomores in Mrs. Rives' English classes supplement their study of The Idylls of the King with a model of a medieval castle.

plus a new study in advanced composition

Advanced composition students develop an understanding of English as they embark upon a semester of creative writing.

To find material for an informal talk, English students Irving Chernoff and Shelley Womack scan recent publications.

Speech, drama stir interest in spoken word

Ray Snider and Roy Mattocks record voices of Jack Dillard and Judi Carter to detect errors in enunciation.

Accepting the challenge to explore the power of the spoken word, students in speech classes pursued a program designed to develop good stage composure and forceful speaking ability. Ambitious young orators made a special study of the United Nations and world affairs, held a World Peace speaking contest, and worked hard to prepare for speech and dramatic competitions. They entered into competition at the North Carolina State Speech Festival and the Southern Speech Association.

To create a greater interest in school productions and to prepare students for public speaking, the dramatics department made a survey of drama from ancient Greek times to the present. The classes presented a series of plays over the school radio station and put on a program of one-act plays for the public. Presenting programs before civic and church groups helped students to learn the correct approach to the spoken language.

Dramatics students, Janice Lowe, Andi Kinnaman, and Angie Young hold a dress rehearsal for a skit to be presented to the class.

Language department adds three courses

Spanish students muse over snatches of conversation flowing through the wires to their earphones.

"Now, the chariot furnished deluxe transportation in Roman days," Mrs. Phillips seems to be saying to Miriam Nash.

Reflecting the trend toward an increasing interest in languages, Central High students were able to continue their studies with the addition of French IV, Latin IV, and Spanish III. Continued use of language laboratories proved helpful to students in eliminating errors and polishing enunciation. With the aid of laboratory assistants, teachers were able to help each student personally toward better comprehension of language.

Through their studies, CHS students gained knowledge of the history and culture of different countries and an insight into the lives of people who speak languages different from their own. As they noted the contribution of these countries to the world, they realized the importance of speaking and writing correctly to keep up with the demand for a practical use of languages.

Roddy Starrett and Judi Carter model French costumes as they prepare to take part in French folk dances.

Library re-enforces expanding curriculum

To utilize the materials of the library more effectively, Roddy Starrett and Linda Christensen listen carefully as librarian Mrs. Poston explains the function of the Reader's Guide.

Just browsing, Gail Hines locates her favorite play at the very bottom of the bookshelf.

To all students, the library was available for a thorough search of reference books in preparation for term papers, as well as fiction and biography for book reports. For science and mathematics students, there were numerous books and pamphlets containing up-to-date information suitable for class reports and projects. History and language students found a wealth of research material through study of maps, globes, and reference volumes. Students in health, business, and industrial arts classes made good use of books on careers and vocations. In addition to books, magazines, and newspapers, the library supplied classes in all departments with special films, film strips, and slides to supplement the school's expanding curriculum.

Wide reading broadens knowledge of history

History courses at CHS provided a comprehensive program. Classes in American history reviewed the growth of the nation and kept up with daily happenings through reading Everyweek and Senior Scholastic magazines. World history students surveyed man's struggle from ancient and medieval times to the present day, while geography classes studied the physical aspects of various countries. Students of sociology and economics made a study of group relationship and explored the problems of production and distribution of goods. Government students confirmed their belief in democracy as they learned the workings of local, state, and federal systems. To aid students in their studies, devices such as films, oral reports, panel discussions, and critical summaries of newscasts, editorials, articles, and books were utilized.

Brenda Bogges and Bucky Morgan prepare a model of an ancient chariot for a history project.

Psychology students listen carefully as Mr. Jones explains some basic concepts of co-operative living.

With the aid of Miss Welch, Ana Batista diligently tackles the problem of finishing her re-work before bell time.

Through calculations and drawings, Mark Edwards illustrates angles and their properties to geometry teacher Mr. Pemberton.

New mathematics courses offer challenge

Charles Warren explains the mysteries of "the related principles of plane geometry incorporated into solid geometry" to Sharon Beck.

Advances in the mathematics department of Central High School were evident this year. A new program was adopted with new books and other new equipment. Modern algebra (an experimental subject last year) found a permanent place in the program, along with modern unified geometry (composed of plane, solid, and co-ordinate geometry). The new mathematics program brought about a change in sequence so that geometry is now studied between first and second year algebra. For students who had mastered the proofs in geometry and the equations of first and second year algebra, the Central High mathematics department offered trigonometry, college algebra, and analytic geometry. Students in all mathematics courses learned the importance of neat, accurate work and clear, logical thinking.

Susan Dillard gets acquainted with the human bone structure as Mr. Ballard, biology instructor, looks on.

As a part of physics, Mrs. Dockery explains acceleration and velocity to Warren Rives, Bill Edwards, Steve Welborn, Bill Millis, and Larry Garner.

Science students probe secrets of universe

As part of the chemistry lesson, Dale Pernell and Randy Bradner listen as Mrs. Roberts explains the intricacies of the sodium chloride molecule.

Because science is a field that probes into every phase of nature, many students found their course in science both exciting and rewarding. Sophomores were introduced to the science department with a year of biology, while for juniors and seniors the program offered physical science, chemistry, advanced biology, and physics. As students sought to verify axioms of this complex scientific world, they also planned to put their knowledge to use through projects for the Science Fair. Seniors kept in mind the Bausch and Lomb Science Award (given each year for outstanding achievement in science), as they strove to maintain excellent records in both classroom and laboratory.

During the year delegates from Central High School attended the Science Symposium at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

DE provides part-time work for students

Through research and discussion, students in marketing classes explore job opportunities and make plans for their own future vocational goals.

Through bulletin board arrangement, girls in the marketing classes become aware of changing styles in clothing and their relationship to retail selling.

Mrs. Bryant points out an excellent section in Pat Dawkins' bookkeeping, as other students strive for the same goal.

Business students train for future careers

Shorthand students strive toward the goal of 120 words per minute—without any errors!

To prepare students for good positions in business, the commercial department offered instruction in numerous fields. Through daily study and practice (to attain maximum speed with minimum errors), typing and shorthand students developed skills for future secretarial positions as well as for personal use. In business mathematics classes, the mysteries of finance and income tax reporting became quite clear as students mastered the skill of computation and learned to apply it. Bookkeeping students learned to operate efficiently several machines associated with office work, while numerous students gained valuable experience by helping teachers with such clerical work as typing or grading test papers.

Distributive education was a co-operative program which allowed students to attend classes and work part-time at some of the High Point stores. Limited to the study and practice of the various facets of retailing, students exhibited their knowledge by preparing various projects on marketing and sales. While many Distributive Education students planned to take additional training after graduation, those students not seeking post-high school training, found that participation in the program enabled them to enter the field of marketing with a certain measure of skill.

Seeking to improve her skill in typing, Linda Fowler receives helpful hints in erasing from Mrs. Bain.

HE courses emphasize stable family living

Reflecting their yuletide spirit, home economics students Fredean Johnson and Diana Montgomery arrange colorful decorations for the Christmas tea.

Sherry Hines finds that careful planning and preparation are important in making a new outfit.

Hoping some day to have homes and families of their own, students of home economics worked busily to learn the do's and don't's of family living. In the newly renovated sewing laboratory, students used complicated patterns and sewing machines to help transform lengths of material into original creations. In the modern kitchen they learned to prepare meals ranging from snacks to banquets, giving careful attention to the minute details so important in homemaking. Projects of various kinds helped them to gain valuable homemaking skills. Even a simple procedure like bed-making must be learned correctly.

The courses pursued were home economics and a new course called Family Living. Students read widely and discussed such topics as household management, child development, health, nutrition, and the importance of establishing and maintaining a stable, happy, well-managed home.

Under the watchful eye of instructor Mr. Holder, the metal work class observes a demonstration of oxyacetylene welding by students Tommy Grubb and Elvin Long.

Boys gain useful skills in industrial arts

Electric welding requires intense concentration by the student engaged in this skill. Facial protection is also a necessity.

Woodwork, metalwork, and mechanical drawing were the courses offered by the industrial arts department. Students in woodwork learned to build small articles, then to construct larger pieces of furniture. In metalwork classes the students learned to operate welders, metal lathes, surface grinders, and milling machines. They also mastered the technique of metal casting. Mechanical drawing students became skillful in making detailed working drawings, including blue prints and house plans.

Students of CHS who elected industrial arts courses gained creative and practical craftsmanship through designing, drawing, and building various articles of wood and metal.

Driver training instructors Mr. Myers, Mr. Shields, and Mr. Lang strive to instill within students a concern for driving defensively and learning the rules of the road.

Driver education teaches rules of safety

To develop muscular co-ordination and physical stamina, sophomore boys learn rope-climbing.

Coach and student reflect anxiety as a practiced lay-up shot "teeters" on the rim of the basket.

Sophomores in Miss Julia Floyd's physical education class observe their fellow teammates as they demonstrate the execution of a backward volleyball vault.

Physical education aids physical fitness

A few quick spins with jump ropes each day add tone and flexibility to muscles.

Central's physical education program for boys emphasized such individual efforts as tumbling, trampoline, wrestling, track, tennis, and horseshoes. Many boys participated in the varsity athletic program, which included football, speedball, basketball, and softball.

Calisthenics, individual and team sports, and health exercises comprised the physical education program for girls at CHS. By participating in such sports as track, tennis, and shuffleboard, each individual had an opportunity to display her ability. Muscular co-ordination and sportsmanship were demonstrated in the team sports of basketball, volleyball, and softball.

Students in driver training classes learned the rules of safe driving in the classroom phase of instruction. They passed tests for steadiness, depth preception, eye dominance, glare and color vision, visual acuity, and reaction time. After finishing the classroom work, the students received under-the-wheel training for a period of 18 days.

A great asset to Central for boosting team morale and school spirit during the football season was the marching band. Led by Drum Major Jerry Hedgecock and the talented majorettes, band members played for pep rallies and football game half-times. To raise money for their new uniforms, they conducted a tag day and a candy sale.

Directed by Mr. David Carter, the marching band was composed of the symphonic and concert bands. This year the band played in the Homecoming and Christmas parades. During the past summer, part of the band traveled to Myrtle Beach to participate in the annual Sun Fun Festival. They placed third in a marching contest of 25 bands. Also during the three-day visit, they played in the Chamber of Commerce Parade in Ocean Drive.

Talent, diligent practice, and certainly the beautiful new concert uniforms made the symphonic, concert, and stage bands three very outstanding musical groups. Members of the symphonic and concert bands, directed by Mr. Carter, performed with the orchestra and choral groups in the annual Christmas program. They attended a state contest in the spring. During the past summer they won in the concert division of the Sun Fun Festival. Exceptional band students participated in the All-State Band.

Members of the stage band attended the Spring Clinic at Wake Forest College. On November 13, they performed at a session of the North Carolina Music Educators Conference at UNC-G. During the year they gave programs on local television shows and for civic groups. The main project for all three groups — symphonic, concert, and stage bands — was the drive to raise money for the new band uniforms.

A CAPPELLA OFFICERS: Larry Seamon, vice-president; Paul Charlton, president; Cathy Anderson, treasurer; Sandra Rogers, secretary.

The A Cappella choir, most advanced choral group of CHS, had a very busy year. Their activities included special concerts, singing in the Christmas Assembly, and participating in the Choral Festival Workshop and in the District Music Contest. The choir's main project for the year was the setting up of a scholarship fund to send a worthy student to Choral Workshop.

Leaning toward the lighter side of music, the girls' Octet provided excellent entertainment for its many audiences. The Octet, composed of talented girls from the A Cappella choir, worked with other choruses in their many activities.

Developing good choral techniques, precise diction, and a pleasing blend were three objectives of the advanced girls' chorus, the Choralettes. Along with other choral groups, the Choralettes gave several concerts, which provided both school and community with excellent entertainment.

Girls' Chorus takes part in choral contest

GIRLS' CHORUS OFFICERS: Larke Loflin, secretary; Ava Leary, vice-president; Debbie Grant, treasurer; Brenda Weant, president.

The Girls' Chorus of CHS began early in September to prepare their repertoire for the year. As they sought to learn choral techniques of breathing, tone quality, and diction, they kept in mind their ambition to gain a place in the choir. Members of the chorus participated in the District Choral Contest at UNC-CH.

New to CHS this year, the Mixed Chorus gained a place for itself by joining with the Girls' Chorus and other musical groups to present the annual Christmas program. The mixed Chorus also took part in the winter and spring concerts.

The Boys' Octet, a talented branch of the A Cappella choir, presented programs to churches and civic organizations that desired small group entertainment. Through their work, the boys found a rewarding means of self-expression through singing and at the same time gained an appreciation of musical values.

Composed of more than a hundred students, the Symphonic Orchestra (including the talented group known as the Second Period Orchestra) prepared for a full schedule of performances during 1966-67. Directed by Mr. E. Barry Ruth, the members of the orchestra studied the best musical compositions from the classical to the modern. The combined orchestras played for assembly programs, presented several concerts, and participated in the North Carolina Orchestra Festival at UNC-G. Exceptional members of the orchestra gained All-State honors in the contest. In December the orchestra took part in the music department's annual Christmas Festival of Music.

The purpose of the orchestra was to develop individual talent and appreciation of music and to provide a performing organization for the student body.

Alert for the half-time signal at a football game, Mr. Carter prepares to direct the band in a march.

The Chamber Orchestra, chosen on the basis of such qualifications as musical ability, attitude, and available practice time, met daily to prepare their repertoire for the year. Made up of principal string players from the Symphonic Orchestra, the select group presented concerts at the High Point Arts Council building. The musicians also joined with other groups to present the annual Christmas Program for the entire student body. They also participated in the North Carolina Orchestra Festival at UNC-G.

With a repertoire ranging from Bach to selections from recent movies, the Chamber Orchestra developed musical knowledge and promoted musical achievement. As a reward for their work, several members of the group were selected for the All-State Orchestra in auditions held in December.

Fifty capable students worked in the school offices to help in the smooth operation of the school. Sorting mail, unpacking and stamping textbooks, and answering the telephone were just a few of the many duties performed by the General Office girls. Assistants in the Girls' Athletic office kept the files, answered the telephone, and ran errands. In the Dean's office, students made out tardy slips, typed the daily bulletin, and assisted with attendance records. Guidance office helpers typed letters, recorded data, kept files in order, and made appointments for Mrs. Harris, Mrs. McCurry, and Miss Haywood.

Performing such vitally necessary tasks as helping with records and other office duties, the student assistants, by donating one hour per day to their jobs, provided an invaluable service to both students and faculty of Central High School.

Eleven student bus drivers furnished safe transportation for more than 600 students of senior high, junior high, and two elementary schools of this district. Supervised by Mr. Sidney Bailey, these qualified drivers gave an invaluable service to school and community.

To provide school supplies for students, fifteen girls, under the supervision of Mrs. Dorothy Whitesell worked in the school store. These girls not only rendered a helpful service to the school but also received valuable sales training and experience.

Advised by Mrs. Poston and Miss Johnson, students of the library staff assisted with routine work of the library. Their duties included checking in and issuing books at the desk, typing catalogue cards and reports, and preparing library bulletin boards.

Assistants in Coach Simeon's office kept the files, answered the telephone, typed athletic records, and ran numerous errands.

CLASSES . . . Senior class of 1967

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Ken McAllister, president; Bill McKenzie, vice-president; Stephanie Thomas, secretary; Mary Alice Lipscomb, treasurer.

Preparing a schedule for class meetings is one duty of Senior advisers, Misses Joseph, Haywood, and Brookbank.

As they pursued their final high school ambitions, Seniors of 1967 looked back with vivid memories upon the activities of their last year at CHS. Academic excellence was one of their primary concerns as they prepared for College Boards. They looked with eagerness toward the future, applying to colleges or planning working careers. Many were scholarship winners, and a still larger number distinguished themselves in music, dramatics, sports, and publications.

In student council and school organizations, seniors led the way in activity and in service to the school. Senior superlatives, the Homecoming Court, and the colorful Homecoming Parade were all illustrations of real school spirit.

As the days passed, seniors chose mascots and made plans for the Commencement season. In March they produced their class play, "Cheaper by the Dozen", an activity that required the combined work of both actors and committee members. Other events came in rapid succession—Junior-Senior Prom, Awards Day, and Senior Banquet. Then, at last, came the long-anticipated day—GRADUATION.

Juniors strive toward high ideals, goals

Aiding many students, junior class advisers Mrs. McCurry, Mr. Simeon, and Mrs. Calhoun play vital roles at CHS.

Knowledge, responsibility, activity — these words seemed to characterize juniors during the year 1966-67.

Whether from the varied mathematics and science courses, English research papers, or parallel readings in history, they discovered the importance of knowledge as they considered college and careers. Many took college boards as a preliminary step to college acceptance.

Measurements for rings reminded the class of future privileges and responsibilities. As they took part in publications, dramatics, speech and musical contests, and athletic competitions, they won honors for themselves and for the school.

The Junior Class play, main project of the year, was presented on November 18 and 19. The comedy, entitled "Father's Been to Mars", was directed by Mrs. Murchison, Mr. Pierce, and Mr. Plummer.

The Junior-Senior prom on an evening in May was the unforgettable event of the year.

Sophomores assume vital roles at Central,

As an important part of their faculty activities, Mrs. Winklosky, Mr. Andrews, and Mrs. Harris serve as Sophomore Class advisers.

During the early days of September, more than 700 sophomores, wide-eyed and innocent, converged upon Central High. After exploring unknown halls and towers, each found his respective homeroom and class and settled down to work.

First on the program for the tenth graders were the class elections. The chosen officers co-operated well with the sponsors and led the class in several worthwhile endeavors.

To finance their activities and to pay for their section of the Pemican, the sophomores conducted a magazine sale in October. The high-selling homerooms and top individual salesmen were given valuable prizes.

Sophomores joined service clubs, musical organizations, and athletic teams. By the close of the year, they felt themselves an important part of Central High.

Caught in a sudden flurry of snow, sophomores Peggy Smith, Emily Foister, and Cathy Frazier seek refuge under an umbrella.

memorable impressions of HP Central High

Early in the spring of 1966, ideas for the 1967 Pemican had begun to form in the minds of the new staff. Editor Betty Poovey and Associate Editor Roma Kerr discussed possible themes, layouts, and picture subjects. Finally they settled upon a theme that would lend itself to depicting the history of Central High School for the year 1966-67.

During the summer the editors and the adviser conferred with the publishers concerning final layout plans. From that day the activity began in earnest. Portraits and organization pictures were taken; copy and captions were written; pictures were identified; art work was created; and advertising was sold.

As the deadline approached, staff members worked feverishly to finish pictures and copy that would reveal the most memorable events of the school year.

Pointer depicts events of 1966-1967 year,

POINTER EDITORS AND ADVISER: Mary Alice Lipscomb, editor-in-chief; Miss Young, adviser; Renee Hulbert, associate editor.

By presenting the latest school news and by producing stimulating editorials, members of the Pointer staff were able to fulfill the three-fold purpose of a high school newspaper. These purposes were to record the events of school life, to entertain, and to inform. Published eight times a year, the Pointer kept Central High students up-to-date on all school activities.

The business staff, headed by Louise Dix, sold advertisements and supported the financial end of the paper. The editorial staff, led by Mary Alice Lipscomb, worked frantically "between issues" to write articles, read proofs, make layouts, finish paste-ups, and finally rush the material to the printer. By being members of the Pointer staff, students gained valuable experience in journalism.

POINTER BUSINESS MANAGERS AND ADVISER: Paula Monroe, assistant business manager; Mrs. Sowers, adviser; Louise Dix, business manager.

serves CHS through many worthy activities

Reaching toward a goal of established and maintained leadership, fellowship, and democracy, the Student Council carried out a series of projects which emphasized school spirit and participation in school-sponsored activities. Among these projects were the bookcover sale, the complete re-writing of the school constitution, the senior girls' powderpuff football game for the Thanksgiving benefit, the homecoming for basketball, and the student talent show.

At the beginning of the school year, SC members acted as guides and helpers in the sophomore orientation program. They also distributed books and performed innumerable tasks around the General Office.

SC delegates attended the North Carolina Student Council Congress at Kinston in November. As Council members gave their yearly reports, they felt that Central High students had achieved a strong sense of unity, good will, and fellowship among themselves.

Enthusiastically taking part in the Inter-Club Clean-up Day sponsored by the Student Council, Susan Hines, a Civinette, does her part by raking leaves.

Deserving juniors and seniors pledged themselves to uphold the standards of the National Honor Society in inspiring candlelight ceremonies held in December and March. After each induction a reception was given in the home economics living room for new members and their parents. Miss Betty Welch was adviser.

During the year, NHS members sold calling cards to finance their projects, which included a coke party for the faculty and the publishing of a newsletter for 1965-66 NHS members who are now away at college. A major project of the year was the presentation of a trophy case for scholastic awards to Central High School.

At the state convention held during the summer, Ken McAllister was chosen state vice-president of NHS for the year 1966-67.

BETA CLUB OFFICERS: Row 1—Chuck Cook, president; Ann Rutledge, assistant secretary-treasurer; Susan Peurifoy, secretary; Catherine West, vice-president; Janice Callaway, treasurer.

Recognition of scholarship was one of the main purposes of the Beta Club, which was founded in 1936. All the members strove to uphold the highest ideals of character, achievement, and leadership. Seniors who had attained a 3.00 average and juniors who had achieved a 3.50 average were inducted in October in a solemn, meaningful ceremony.

Several projects were carried out by Central's Beta Club, largest in the state. One of these was a contribution to the Dr. Scott Scholarship, which will go to a deserving senior. The success of College Day was due in part to the careful planning of both Beta Club and NHS members. A treat for all was the colorful float constructed for the Homecoming parade.

“Speech for use” was the slogan of Masque and Gavel, national honorary speech society, as it encouraged better speech for students in both school and community. Supervised by Miss Goodman, charter sponsor, and Mr. Plummer, assistant sponsor, members of Masque and Gavel conducted many worthwhile projects.

In October Masque and Gavel members combined their energy and talents in the construction of a colorful float for the Homecoming parade. To improve their speaking ability, many students composed and delivered original orations and participated in speaking contests. Members also contributed to the Southern Speech Association assembly program. In the spring several delegates, accompanied by their advisers, attended the State Speech Festival at Wake Forest College.

through oratory, extemporaneous speaking

NFL OFFICERS: Row 1—Dennis Cole, president; Tom Fairchild, vice-president. Row 2—Amanda Greene, point secretary; Janet McAllister, treasurer; Debbie Bennett, recording secretary.

Extemporaneous speaking, dramatic interpretation, original oratory, debate, and student congress work were the challenges offered by the National Forensic League. Members of the group conducted activities which emphasized excellent oratory and dignified leadership.

The accomplishments of students were recorded by a system of credit, whereby points were received for contest and congress speeches, and talks of at least four minutes presented to a group of adults or a student assembly.

Once each month NFL members attended a district tournament, accompanied by one of the coaches. In addition, they participated in tournaments at Georgetown University, Emory University, Davidson College, and the University of South Carolina.

NFL coaches for 1966-67 were Mrs. Rachel Roberts and Mr. Michael Pierce.

Debaters send teams to state tournaments,

As Ann Haworth and Alice Price study material on foreign aid, Pam Burton types a research file for future debates.

Central High's varsity and beginning debaters had a busy year. They devoted considerable time to the 1967 national debate topic — "Resolved that the foreign aid program of the United States should be limited to non-military assistance." In March they took part in the State District Debates at Wake Forest College.

In the fall CHS debaters participated in preliminary debates with four high schools in a contest at Lee Edwards High School, Asheville, N. C. The debaters also acted as hosts to four debating contests at home.

In February and March the debaters gained finer points of debate tactics by participation in the Barkley Forum, Emory University; the Cherry Blossom Festival, Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.; the Wildcat Debating Tournament, Davidson College; and the Camellia Festival, University of South Carolina.

Monogram Club aids CHS athletic program

MONOGRAM CLUB OFFICERS: Row 1—Tate Holbrook, secretary; Terry Kearns, treasurer; Ken McAllister, chaplain. Row 2—Bill Blue, president; Pete McDaniel, sergeant-at-arms; Ronnie Hinkle, vice-president.

Attired in white monogrammed sweaters, members of the Monogram Club added cheer and efficiency to all Central High athletic events. Composed of varsity athletes who had earned a letter in at least one sport, the club was advised by Coach Simeon.

The monogram wearers were an active force in encouraging Central students to support their athletes. Projects for the year included the selling of booster bow ties, football, and basketball pins, and victory tags for upcoming games. These projects were planned to promote additional school spirit and to provide funds for the various service activities of the club.

Anchor Club stresses goal of citizenship

ANCHOR CLUB OFFICERS: Kathy Clark, historian; Phyllis Hembree, vice president; Mattielee Bame, president; Sherry Cross, secretary.

Sponsored by the Pilot Club of High Point, the Anchor Club continued its program for school and community improvement. To carry on effective business meetings, the girls made a study of parliamentary procedures. Prominent speakers, including the state chairman of Anchor clubs, made inspirational talks at several meetings, emphasizing the Anchor Club ideals of citizenship, fellowship, and service.

In October, the Anchor Club prepared a float for the Homecoming parade. As a service project, members assisted the Pilot Club in the sale of Easter lilies to aid handicapped children. In the fall, delegates attended a district workshop in Winston-Salem.

QUILL AND SCROLL LEADERS: Betty Poovey, Pemican editor-in-chief, and Mary Alice Lipscomb, Pointer editor-in-chief.

Scholarship, citizenship, and meritorious work on the staff of either the Pemican or the Pointer were the qualities upon which students were chosen for membership in Quill and Scroll, international honor society of high school journalists. Chartered in 1957, the CHS chapter of Quill and Scroll carried out its purpose of encouraging and rewarding individual achievement in journalism.

Students recommended from the Pointer staff by advisers were Mary Alice Lipscomb, Sue Jarlett, and Louise Dix.

Those recommended from the Pemican staff by advisers included Carol Beaston, Margaret Bullard, Annie Burney, Judi Carter, Roma Kerr, Betty Poovey, Blair Rankin, and Kathleen Woodell.

JCL OFFICERS: Brenda Smith, quaestor; Pat Williard, scriptor; Tim Yates, imperator; Peggy Parham, censor.

To promote a better understanding of the Latin language and to hand on the torch of classical civilization to the modern world was the aim of the Junior Classical League. To accomplish their purpose, JCL members celebrated Saturnalia at their December meeting. In January they held a Roman-style banquet with slaves as waiters. In April the JCL continued its classical emphasis by sponsoring a Latin Week at Central High. As interest in their Roman heritage increased, JCL members fostered plans for organizing a Latin Honor Society in the near future. To finance their activities, the group carried out a successful fund-raising project.

Accompanied by their adviser, Mrs. Carolyn Phillips, several delegates attended the state JCL convention at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in March.

French Club raises funds for foreign study

FRENCH CLUB OFFICERS: Bucky Morgan, secretary; Beth Hart, vice-president; Carol Aderholdt, president; Brenda Boggess, treasurer.

A laudable undertaking of the French Club this year was raising funds to send a student to France for advanced language study. To finance the plan, the club sold stationery. The group was assisted in the project by the Spanish Club.

At their monthly meetings French Club members participated in programs designed to give interesting information about France and the French language. Highlights of the year included the French banquet and the Foreign Language Week program.

To gain proficiency in writing, several members carried on a pen-pal correspondence with students in France. Others completed successfully the National French Examination, thereby becoming eligible for the opportunity to study in France.

Advisers for the club were Misses McDavid and Secret.

Spanish Club aids international good-will

SPANISH CLUB OFFICERS: Butch Estes, president; Chuck Cook, vice-president; Susan Hines, program chairman; Peggy Parham, secretary; Pete Evans, treasurer.

Monthly gatherings of the Spanish Club gave accomplished students an opportunity to display their linguistic abilities. Programs were built around the theme of understanding customs and ideas of Spanish-speaking people. Prominent speakers highlighted several programs.

As one of its several projects this year, the Spanish Club co-operated with the French Club in helping to send a French student to France for summer study. To finance the undertaking, the group sold stationery. The Spanish Club assisted with the program of National Language Week and also helped to defray expenses by selling Spanish wedding cakes. Still another project of the club was the Spanish fiesta in early spring. Advisers were Miss Joseph and Mr. Sanchez.

FBLA gives time, effort to worthy causes

FBLA OFFICERS AND ADVISER: Becky Dennis, vice-president; Miss Medford, adviser; Karla Dunlap, president; Pat Hicks, secretary.

To develop competent business leadership and to prepare for successful citizenship were objectives of the Future Business Leaders of America. At their meetings, members investigated job opportunities in High Point and listened to speakers on business topics.

The FBLA service project for December was typing addresses on envelopes for the March of Dimes campaign. Throughout the year, members assisted teachers with typing and duplicating tests and study materials. They also made donations to worthy causes in both school and community. To finance their projects, the members conducted a bake sale.

Advisers of the FBLA during 1966-67 were Mrs. Evelyn Harris and Miss Sandra Medford.

FTA stresses student leadership, service

Advised by Miss Massengill and Mr. Dickens, the Future Teachers of America had a busy year filled with various projects and activities.

In October, Margaret Bullard, Barbara Ellington, and Barbara Halstead were delegates to the district FTA convention held at Catawba College. Accompanied by their adviser, Mr. Dickens, the delegates took part in conferences and listened to outstanding speakers in the field of teaching.

The main project of the year was selling plastic covers for the yearbook. Another project was a bake sale to aid the foreign exchange education program. During American Education Week in November, FTA members served as ushers at Central's Open House. Throughout the year, FTA's varied programs emphasized the qualities essential in a good teacher.

FHA conducts worthy community projects

Members of Central's Future Homemakers of America Club planned and executed many worthwhile school related projects at their regular meetings this year. At Christmas, many shut-in patients were cheered by the caroling of FHA members, and several needy families of the High Point area received generous baskets of groceries packed for them by the FHA.

In October the girls planned and built a float for the Homecoming parade. Also in October, FHA officers and several other delegates attended a district rally of FHA in Greensboro. Highlight of the year for the CHS delegation was attending the state FHA convention in Raleigh early in April 1967.

Advisers of the Future Homemakers of America for 1966-67 were Mrs. Gwendolyn Griffin and Mrs. Mae Murphy.

Supervised by Mrs. Poston and Miss Johnson, the group made a special study of librarianship as a profession. During the year the club planned a scrapbook to be displayed at the state convention.

In October, eight delegates, accompanied by Miss Johnson, attended a meeting of the North Central High School Library Association at Western High School in Alamance County.

Y-Teens advance ideals, individual dignity

Composed of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, the Y-Teens excelled in school and community spirit. Several Y-Teens chose to work with VISTA on tutoring projects; some served in an advisory capacity for junior high school Y-Teens; and still others helped with recreational programs for youngsters from Clara Cox Apartments.

Delegates attended the 1966 Virginia-Carolina Conference at Guilford College and the Golden Triangle Convention held in Greensboro. Programs in these conferences emphasized serving the community, growing in Christian ideals, and understanding fellow citizens of all races better.

Y-Teen officers for 1966-67 were Sue Jarlett, president; Kathy Armstrong, secretary; Kathleen Woodell, treasurer; and Connie Cates, ICC representative.

Major project of the club was assisting with the Career Day program and acting as guides for students and visitors. The group also helped at teachers' meetings during the year.

In conjunction with their sponsors, Inter-Act members sold tickets for the annual Rotary Club Auction and Barbecue at the YMCA.

Through wide reading, Inter-Act members sought to increase their knowledge and understanding of community, state, national, and world affairs.

Advised by Misses Karriker and Walton, the girls planned and executed their programs with enthusiasm. During football season, members worked at concession stands and helped to build school spirit by placing "Go Bison" posters at Tower 2. Other activities included planting flowers on school grounds, serving as teachers' aides, and ushering at the High Point Community Theater. Before Christmas they decorated each homeroom door at CHS thereby spreading holiday cheer.

At their weekly meetings the boys conducted programs emphasizing fair play, upright living, and responsible citizenship in both school and community. Advised by Mr. Johnson and Mr. Reeves, the Junior Civitans completely re-wrote their constitution to promote greater efficiency in their organization.

An important project was the collection of articles needed for health and school purposes in Vietnam. To finance their project, the boys organized and executed a car wash.

Energetic Keyettes serve school, community,

Organized in 1966 and advised by Mrs. Blythe and Mrs. Rives, the Keyettes embarked upon a program of service to school and community. As their main project of the year, the Keyettes helped the Key Club in compiling and distributing the student handbook and directory. As a Christmas project, the girls donated money in the name of Central's teachers to the Christmas Cheer Fund. In co-operation with other clubs, the girls assisted in clean-up campaigns and helped to organize social events. To finance their activities, the Keyettes sold Bison Booster Tags at all home football games.

Other services included donating a flag cord to the school, helping with the March of Dimes, acting as teachers' aides, and presenting a Thanksgiving dinner to a needy family.

The Keyettes sent one of their members to the Kiwanis luncheon each Friday.

Key Club promotes many helpful projects,

Directed by their advisers Mr. L. H. Ballard and Mr. A. J. Simeon, the Key Club aided students and faculty by the publication of the Key Club Directory. At their weekly Wednesday night meetings, the members planned projects and gained experience in living and working together and developing leadership and co-operation. Besides their regular routine of raising and lowering the flag each day, they sold programs at all home football and basketball games, painted trash cans, and assisted in cleaning the campus for special occasions. Another worthy project of the club was collecting paperback books to be sent to Vietnam. In all their activities, Key Club members strove to fulfill the purpose of their organization — Serving the school and the community.

YC stresses wholesome student recreation

Discussing plans for up-coming Youth Council projects, Central delegates Dottie Webb, Roger Carrick, and Jim Quinn study project suggestions.

In its second year of activity in the High Point area, the Youth Council carried out a program dedicated to wholesome recreation and community service. Composed of representatives from Ragsdale, Allen Jay, William Penn, and High Point Central, YC members planned and executed projects on a community-wide level, including the Youth Jury and a youth employment service. A weekly master calendar, prepared by a YC committee, kept students informed concerning activities.

To meet the need for additional wholesome entertainment in the High Point area, the Youth Council sponsored such productions as the Battle of the Bands and the Teenage Talent Show. Profits from these productions were donated to worthy fund drives.

Officers were Bunky Craven, chairman; Jim Quinn, vice-chairman; and Sadie Pike, secretary. Adviser was Mrs. Judy Teer of the City Parks and Recreation Department.

MATH CLUB OFFICERS: Ben Hill, vice-president; Carolyn Lichauer, Secretary; Roddy Starrett, president.

In its second year at CHS, the Math Club continued to pursue its interest in mathematics. Through reading and discussion and viewing films and slides, members sought to broaden their ideas concerning the axiomatic world of numbers. Prominent speakers in the field helped them to grasp mathematical principles and to show how these basic laws can be applied to every day life.

Students presented programs in areas of greatest interest and prepared projects to illustrate mathematical principles. Many read widely in the field of engineering with a view of choosing this field as a future vocation.

Sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club of High Point, the Sub-Juniors assisted their mentors with the Litter Bag Campaign to keep the city clean. On Tag Day the girls collected money to help the campaign for retarded children. They aided teachers during PTSA Day and also were present for the PTSA Open House Program that evening.

With service to school and community as their motto, the Sub-Juniors made plans to attend the Sub-Junior Annual Jamboree in August 1967. They were assisted by their advisers, Mrs. Elizabeth Rothrock and Mrs. Catherine Winklosky.

Pep Club honors "school spirit" leaders

Advised by Miss Patricia Burroughs, the Pep Club worked with zeal and enthusiasm to build school spirit. On Blue-and-White Days, they "perked up" the bulletin boards with posters of Peanuts characters. To finance their projects, they sold blue-and-white pom-pom shakers during basketball season, and worked with the cheerleaders to yell vigorously at all games. The group also arranged bus caravans to several out-of-town games.

At the first school-wide pep rally held in the boys' gymnasium, two members elected from each class were recognized for their outstanding school spirit. These were Peggy Parham, Ken McAllister, Chuck Cook, seniors; Ana Batista, Terry Kearns, juniors; Emily Millis, David Sheppard, sophomores.

Science Club aids experiment and research

Stimulating interest in scientific achievements was the foremost goal of the Science Club for 1966-67. During the year several noted men in the field of science spoke to the club concerning new scientific research, developments, and accomplishments.

Another important phase of the Science Club work was gathering information concerning further study. Speakers from schools and colleges informed members of opportunities for scientific study and research. Several industries offered scholarships for students of science, and representatives from these companies informed club members of scholarship possibilities.

The Science Club also encouraged scientific research and experiments by individual members. Many of these projects, carried out with the help and encouragement of faculty advisers, were exhibited at the Science Fair.

HEALTH CAREER OFFICERS: Janice Wise, treasurer; Shirley Farlow, corresponding secretary; Margaret Bullard, president; Jane Goodman, secretary.

The Health Careers Club explored many facets of medicine during 1966-67. Their programs centered around the fields of nursing, dentistry, and surgery. Guest speakers representing various medical fields added interest to the programs.

During the year the group made a field trip to the Forsyth Memorial Hospital to view the x-ray department. In March 1967, a delegation attended the North Carolina State Health Fair in Goldsboro. There they listened to discussions on medicine, pharmacy, and dentistry and gained valuable information regarding educational requirements and professional opportunities in these fields.

Youth Volunteers gain valuable training,

Many a bed-ridden patient had his day brightened by the presence of the cheerful and efficient Youth Volunteers. The perky blue and white cap of the Volunteer was a symbol of much hard work and training. Each Volunteer received six hours training from the Red Cross, in addition to four hours of hospital training. If the girl passed the ten hours of probation, she then received her cap, which was proudly worn thereafter.

Each month the Volunteer was required to work at least four hours at the hospital, either on Saturdays or Sundays. These duties might be in the laboratory, pharmacy, or supply rooms. By working as surgical escort and directly with the patients on various floors, the Volunteer learned from experience how to aid and comfort the sick.

College Day offers challenge to students

College Day offers opportunities for Central High students to confer with representatives of selected colleges.

Representatives from sixty colleges and schools made College Day 1966 the largest and best example of the annual event ever to be held at Central High School. The College Day program gave students an opportunity to make decisions and long-range plans.

Students who were interested in continuing their education after graduation from high school conferred with representatives concerning scholarships, college entrance requirements, applications, and estimated expenses at the colleges of their choice. All representatives emphasized the importance of doing good work in high school.

Acting as hosts were members of the Beta Club and National Honor Society, assisted by the Junior Civitans. Faculty chairman was Miss Frances Haywood. Refreshments were served in the faculty dining room of the cafeteria to college representatives, hosts, and committee chairmen.

Career Day 1966 offers vocational guide

On Career Day 1966, the combined efforts of the high school faculty, the High Point Rotary Club, and business and professional leaders of the community brought to the students of CHS a program offering guidance in many vocations.

Mrs. Janet McCurry and Mr. Kenneth Mann, assisted by Mr. W. D. Lee, Jr., Rotary committee chairman, and the Inter-Act Club, brought this opportunity for gaining information concerning requirements, earnings, and advancement in different fields.

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors attended a keynote assembly in the auditorium and then went to conferences of their choice, where they received helpful information and advice from industrial and professional representatives. In addition, the speakers sought to strengthen the interest of students in school to promote the realization that an education is important.

Taking advantage of Career Day conferences, prospective majors in elementary education gain valuable information from an expert in the field.

Seeking better job opportunities in High Point, CHS students listen attentively as a Career Day speaker explains the requirements of certain industrial vocations.

'Cellar 1966' presents colorful programs

"The Cellar" opened once again with vivacious student performers eager to present the 1966 Student Council Talent Show. Serving as masters of ceremonies were David Mitchell and Jamie Burnley. David Mitchell also appeared as Tony Italino, new owner of the firmly established night club "The Cellar."

On the entertainment bill, for an evening of fun and laughter, were 24 talent presentations, including six combos, their well-amplified music delighting the exuberant audience; four dancing acts, intricate and original in style; and four performances of well-known folk songs, ably sung by student virtuosos. Other features included voice and piano solos, comedy acts, and an exciting finale.

With all the freshness and charm of a country girl, Frankie Watson captivates the Talent Show audience with her singing.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Roy Wooster. Central High's own Octets and Ray Simone entertained during intermission.

Honored guests included school board members, faculty members, school executives, parents of class officers, student council officers, and junior and senior class officers and their dates. Upper-classmen, especially Chairman Roy Wooster and committee members, who went all-out to make the prom the brilliant success it was, will long remember those blissful hours.

Homecoming Day '66

Excitement, hard work, and gayety dominated Homecoming 1966 at Central High School. Highlighting the activities of the day was the crowning of Homecoming Queen Susan Hines. Miss Hines, who was escorted by Will Gurley, received the crown from Mayor Pro Tem of High Point, Roy Culler, Jr. Attendants were Maid of Honor Mary Greene, escorted by Pat Meisky; Senior Attendant Cathy Anderson, escorted by Bill Edwards; Senior Attendant Ashley Rochelle, escorted by Braxton Culler; Junior Attendant Gail Leonard, escorted by Anthony Xepolis; and Sophomore Attendant Cathy Frazier, escorted by Jay Spencer.

The day began with the construction of floats based on the theme of comic strip characters. Thrilled with the idea of being free from classes to work on floats, students toiled through the morning hours, transforming cars and trucks into mobile works of art. Finally the last crepe paper rosette was in place; the band and majorettes, resplendent in new uniforms, took their places in line; and the caravan moved in colorful parade through the streets of downtown High Point.

First place honors in the float contest went to the Anchor Club; second place to the National Honor Society; and third place to the Girls' Athletic Association.

At the halftime of the football game, the winning float, the spirited marching band and majorettes, and the Homecoming Court furnished spectacular entertainment as they moved in parade around the football field.

Although the Bison fought hard, they were unable to hold back the Greensboro Grimsley Whirlies. When the final whistle sounded, the score stood at 20-13 in favor of Grimsley.

turns into season's lone gridiron victory

Quarterback Ken McAllister executes a "keeper" play in order to gain extra yardage against Grimsley.

Displaying strength and poise rarely seen in an opening football game, the Black Bison defeated East Forsyth, 25-12. Halfback Jimmy Comer scored High Point's first three touchdowns, crashing over from the five, the one, and the eight. Tate Holbrook added the team's final TD on a three-yard plunge. High Point led in total offense with 270 yards as compared to the Eagle's 242.

Against Parkland the Bison made a valiant forth and goal effort with five seconds remaining, but to no avail. From the five, quarterback Ken McAllister rolled to his right only to be stopped two feet short of pay dirt. As a result, Central wound up on the losing end of a 12-6 score. David Roach scored the team's lone TD.

High Point played its first home game against Fayetteville and was soundly defeated, 40-12. The Bulldogs, exhibiting a strong running game, ran up a 20-0 lead before the Bison could score. All of Central's points again came from Comer, with one of the TD's climaxing an 80 yard drive.

Bison defense prevents five Page scores

Even with Whirlies leaping on his back, Tate Holbrook grinds out the yardage for a first down.

Central 4-A Conference play began when the Bison tangled with Burlington. Ahead 20-12 at the half, High Point saw the Bulldogs turn Central's miscues into an eventual final score of 38-20 in favor of Burlington. Holbrook, Comer, and Sam Dockery each had six-point plays in the losing effort.

The Page Pirates scored only one touchdown in sending the Bison to their fourth straight defeat, 7-0. High Point penetrated as close as the four, only to lose the ball on downs. Defense sparkled for the Bison as they stopped five Pirate drives deep in High Point territory. McAllister and Dockery intercepted Page passes, while Jim Caplanides and Mark Gross recovered fumbles for High Point.

R. J. Reynolds used a pass interception and a fumble recovery to produce a 21-0 victory in the Bison's next encounter. Later in the first quarter, through a Reynolds punting miscue, Central obtained the ball at the Demon one. However, four futile running plays returned possession to Reynolds.

Central's Warren Rives pulls down one of Lexington's Yellow Jackets as Bison Steve Davis moves in to assist.

After scoring one of High Point's two touchdowns of the night, quarterback Sam Dockery waits for the opposition to unpile.

Valiant effort fails to topple Grimsley

As a Lexington Yellow Jacket prepares to enter the end-zone, Ken McAllister makes a final attempt to prevent a score.

Tate Holbrook was the lone Bison to cross the goal line against Salisbury. Unfortunately, two Yellow Jackets also followed the same path and in so doing carried their team to a 14-7 triumph.

It appeared as though Homecoming might bring High Point its second win of the season, but Greensboro Grimsley thought differently in sending the Bison to a 20-13 defeat. Central drew first blood when Dockery hit pay dirt on a two yard run and Steve Sorrell added the extra point. The Whirlies recovered, largely through High Point fumbles, and led 20-7 in the fourth frame. Dockery tossed a 14-yard pass to McAllister for the Bison's final score. Defensive stand-outs for High Point were Ronnie Hinkle and Tim Ilderton.

North Forsyth's Ken Parks proved to be too much for the Bison as he scored four touchdowns in the Viking's 34-6 victory. Again, Holbrook was the only Bison to hit pay dirt.

A 41-0 loss to Lexington brought the season to a close for the Bison, finishing with a 1-9 record.

J.V.'s top Salisbury to highlight season

Although playing with determination, skill, and good sportsmanship, the Junior Varsity football team finished the season with a 4-5 won-lost record. After a losing streak of four games, the JV team was able to achieve victories over R. J. Reynolds and Salisbury. The Salisbury game was perhaps the team's best showing. The JV defense was able to hold Salisbury scoreless, while its offense, with the fine ball carrying of Donny Hubbard, scored 21 points for a shut-out.

High Point Central's wrestling team finished the season with six victories and nine defeats and a 2-4 won-lost record in conference competition. Throughout the season, as in the past, the Central matmen were strongest in the lower weight divisions. Bill Blue, in the 120-pound class, wound up the season with a 9-2 record. David Owens, a 95-pounder, was victorious in 14 out of 15 matches. In February these two grapplers competed in the state championship contest held at R. J. Reynolds High School in Winston-Salem.

Bison hit .500 mark in non-conference play

VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM: Row 1 — Shaver, manager; Watson, K. Kirkman, Brewer, Newnam, Dockery, Barker, Utley, manager. Row 2 — Coach

Tony Simeon, McDaniel, Hawks, Estes, J. Kirkman, Hinshaw, McKenzie, Crews, Briggs, McInnis.

High Point began its 1966-67 basketball season with a 71-68 victory over defending State 4-A champs, Fayetteville. The victory string continued over Hunter Huss of Gastonia, as Central hit a respectable 46.2 per cent of their shots in the second half.

Following a 14 point loss to Wilmington, the Bison again connected at an amazing 48 per cent against Gastonia's Frank Ashley, only to lose the game at the foul line, 65-59.

A return match at Fayetteville turned out in favor of the Bulldogs, 52-50. Tied 50-all, High Point's Butch Estes went to the charity line with 10 seconds to play. He missed the shot, and Fayetteville returned the ball to send a fifteen footer through at the sound of the buzzer.

The Bison returned to the victory column as they met Lee Edwards High of Asheville. Guard Tom Barker paced the winning attack with 23 points. The 69-47 romp brought the Bison their third victory of the season and completed Central's non-conference schedule.

In the season opener, Tom Barker sinks two points against the defending State 4-A champions, Fayetteville.

Pressed into the corner by an Asheville player, Steve Watson searches for a team mate to whom to pass the ball.

Leaping into the air, John Kirkman attempts to gain possession of a jump ball in a game with Frank Ashley of Gastonia.

Kirkman leads upset win over Burlington

Central's Sam Dockery checks the R. J. Reynolds defense before deciding his offensive pattern.

High Point entered Central 4-A Conference play with a 70-67 upset victory over previously unbeaten Burlington. John Kirkman's 20 points were tops for the Bison.

In their next match Central saw the Page Pirates rebound for a 58-55 victory over High Point. This failed to keep the Bison down, for against Reynolds the strong rebounding of Bill McKenzie and Jackie Hawks brought a 68-58 victory. The following Friday saw Sam Dockery take charge and score nine points in the final 41 seconds to pull the Bison from a three point lead to a 12 point margin of victory over Salisbury.

After losing a close one to North Forsyth, the Bison prepared to meet Greensboro Grimsley. The Whirlies' combination of two defenses coupled with their 50 per cent shooting average proved to be too much for Central. Barker's 14 points led High Point scoring in the 55-46 defeat.

As if a 65-64 double overtime victory over Lexington were not enough, the Bison went into three overtimes before finally falling to Burlington, 58-56, in the final two seconds.

As North Forsyth players appear to stand in awe, Bill McKenzie taps in an easy field goal.

Tournament play brings defeat to Bison

When the Bison next faced Page, they encountered a slowdown. After a scoreless first quarter, the half produced a 6-6 tie. Later the tempo picked up and the Bison won, 32-24.

With the return of 6-11 Danny Traylor, R. J. Reynolds had the momentum to overpower the Bison and hand them their fifth conference loss. Bouncing back in the next game, Tom Barker sank two free throws with 12 seconds remaining to insure a 53-52 triumph over Salisbury. Grimsley again had an excellent night from the floor when the Bison next met them and the result was a 67-61 drubbing of the High Pointers.

Good shooting insured a relatively easy win over North Forsyth, and the Bison made ready for a home finale against Lexington. After a close first half, the entire Bison squad combined to produce an impressive 90-56 victory. The win left High Point with a season mark of eleven wins and nine defeats. However, they lost to Salisbury in the first round play of the Central 4-A Conference Tournament.

With Butch Estes placing a key block, guard Sam Dockery finds the going easier in a drive for the basket.

The first victory for the Junior Varsity basketball team was over Hunter Huss of Gastonia in the season's second game. The defensive prowess of Greg McAllister and the scoring ability of Jay Spencer and David Price made this and other wins possible. At the end of the season, the JV cagers had won eight games and lost twelve. They played their best game against R. J. Reynolds, winning by a margin of seventeen points.

'B' team gains valuable cage experience

Central's newest athletic organization, the Junior Varsity "B" team, spends much time in practice, sharpening their basketball skills.

In its initial year of playing basketball at CHS, the Junior Varsity "B" team furnished opportunity for boys possessing athletic ability to engage in interscholastic competition. The "B" cagers played with other "B" teams and high school JV teams. At the end of the season the group had a 1-9 record, winning only over the Thomasville JV team. Phil Butler, averaging 14 points per game, was the leading scorer.

Lack of balanced team hinders CHS tankmen

Central's swimming team, under the direction of Coach Vic Sanniota, had one victory and five defeats at Pemican press time. Leading the squad was Robert Wray, team captain and star breaststroker. A great asset to this year's team was Mike Soutter, a sophomore, who was the team's butterflyer and 400-year freestyler. The tankmen placed fourth in the Central 4-A Conference meet, and in March they competed in the State 4-A contest held in Chapel Hill.

In that match, Hunter Quick and John Walser, playing in singles competition, survived first round competition, only to be defeated in the second round. High Point's doubles teams met the same fate. The team of Bob Bodle and Eddie Woods lasted only to the second round, as did the pair of David Meyers and Gary Fagg. High Point finished the season with a 2-6 mark.

Bowers represents cindermen in State meet

Central's cindermen were victorious in four of their five regular season meets. In post-season events they gained a third place in both the conference qualifying and in the Guilford County track and field meets. For the sectional, the Bison earned 26 points, good enough for fifth place. In that meet Central was led by Charlie Bowers who, in addition to a second-place in the 220, raced to a 10.3-second win in the 100-yard dash, thereby earning him the right to represent High Point at the state meet in Raleigh.

Two of Central's top runners, Don Haywood and Charlie Bowers, finish their warm-up laps while practicing for a meet.

Defending Central 4-A champions, High Point again reached the conference tournament only to be defeated by North Mecklenburg, 7-1. Regular season action saw the Bison earning a 9-5 record, good for a second place tie with Smith, even though a coaches' draw placed Central in third. Doubleheader wins were achieved over both North Forsyth and Burlington. Leading hitter for the Bison was catcher, Ken Rhyne, while Roddy Starrett led the mound staff with a record of 4-1. # GAA achieve Sportsday trophy for keeps Following their motto, "A girl for every sport, a sport for every girl," the Girls' Athletic Association participated in a vigorous sports program throughout the year. In the fall, strenuous speedball claimed their time and energy. After Thanksgiving the girls sought to develop a winning basketball team. Softball, volleyball, and tennis were popular with the coming of spring. Individual sports such as ping pong, shuffleboard, and tennis proved to be favorite sports for many GAA members.

In the Volleyball Playday competition, Central's GAA won first place. Also in the Sportsday contest held each year in High Point, the Central High School GAA captured first place in competition for the third consecutive year, thus retiring the trophy.

Girls' Varsity cagers have good '67 season

In a pre-game warm-up, Varsity girls keep their eyes on the ball as they seek to build basketball skills.

With a loss early in the season to Thomasville High, the girls' Varsity basketball team went on to win victories over East and West Forsyth. After three losses to Parkland, Grimsley, and East Forsyth respectively, the Bisonettes set out on a long winning streak. They achieved two victories over Smith, two over Page, and scored wins over Grimsley, Parkland, and West Forsyth. At the close of the season, they had clinched a 9-4 won-lost record.

The JV basketball girls pursued their 1967 aims by promoting competition that emphasized enjoyment of sports, leadership through student management, and development of sportsmanship and character. The girls played two games each week, thereby gaining valuable skill and experience. Directors of girls' athletics were Misses Pat Hester and Julia Floyd. A basketball banquet and an award for the most valuable player were scheduled to take place at the close of the season.

With Miss Pat Hester as their mentor, Central's Varsity basketball team displays winning smiles, the trademark of their winning team.

Under the direction of Miss Floyd, Junior Varsity girls leap high for control of the ball.

In victory or defeat, the Varsity cheerleading squad injected much vim and vigor into the student body at games and did an excellent work of boosting the teams' morale. Along with the Marching band and a host of loyal fans, the Varsity cheerleaders did their part to show school spirit at its best.

Leading yells was not the whole duty of the cheerleaders. They sponsored Father's Night and organized and led caravans to football games. To finance their projects, they advertised and sold programs and also sold confetti at the games.

Cheerleaders Diane Oden, Susan Hines, and Cheryl Griffin approach the football season with their usual enthusiastic spirit.

J.V. girls spread interest in Bison games

Bubbling with enthusiasm, Ann Marsh takes the floor to lead Bison fans in a rousing cheer for the team.

Catching the spirit of a CHS pep rally, Mascot Mary Faith Dickens helps lead the cheers.

With unfailing support, the JV cheerleaders, led by Jane Bernot and Anne Marsh, cheered the Baby Bison to many victories. The JV squad, proudly displaying new blue and white uniforms, also assisted the Varsity cheerleaders at home football games. Leading the students with energetic cheers, they kept team morale high.

On Father's Night, during Homecoming, and at all home football and basketball games, the girls carried out their projects with energy, zeal, and enthusiasm. The JV cheerleaders also helped to boost school spirit in pep rallies and caravans.

Thank You

A yearbook is published only through the generosity and complete support of many people behind the scenes. It takes far more than two editors and an adviser to produce a yearbook of which everyone can be proud. To all who have helped us, we wish to express our sincere gratitude.

Special appreciation goes to Mr. Berry, who exemplified patience and understanding in all requests. To the faculty we extend a hearty thank-you for their tolerance with interrupted classes and for their help with picture sales and yearbook distribution.

To the student body of CHS for their unfailing support of the 1967 Pemican.

To our editorial staff, who all but wore a groove in the floor between the Pemican office and the general office running errands for us. We are also indebted to them for writing cutlines and copy, drawing master layouts, and assisting the photographers.

To Mrs. Bain and our division editors, who organized pictures and copy and unfailingly brought order out of confusion, we extend sincere appreciation. Added thanks go to Blair for his loyal sports coverage, and to our photographers, Larry, Ken, and Fred, for their willingness to meet instantaneous demands. To our typists for stacks of copy typed so precisely, and especially to Mike for his many hours after school and his own private war with the typewriter keys. And to Karla for all her typing and painstaking work with Senior Statistics.

To the business staff and to Annie and Judy, for their outstanding sales records.

To Mr. Honeycutt, who answered our pleas for photographic help and assisted us immeasurably.

To Mr. Ward, Mr. Boswell, and Delmar for their guidance and assistance with the 1967 Pemican.

Most important, to Miss Louise Tapp, our adviser, who worked many extra hours (often late into the night), corrected our blunders, and taught us much about publishing an annual. How can a mere "thank-you" be adequate in repaying her unfailing devotion and love for her job and her school.

And so, we the editors of the 1967 Pemican "bury the hatchet" for the final time. With it go our memories of petty squabbles and tear-provoking tensions, leaving behind only the warm glow of new-found friendships, individual maturity, and a deeper understanding of ourselves and our world.

Mrs. Calloun,

I want to thank you for making my junior year a wonderful success. You are one of the two most wonderful teachers I have ever had, the other one is Miss Cummings. You have really made learning a pleasure this year. You are a wonderful teacher and a wonderful person. I only hope my teachers next year are as great as you are. I'm sure a great thought to me when my father died, which was to what I did. But you know though. It really meant a lot to me to know you. I'm sure. I'm sure. And you the next year. And I'm sure. Have a nice summer and a good one next year. Thanks again for everything. Love, bless you!

Sincerely,
Betty Bledsoe.

Miss Calhoun,

Probably the greatest satisfaction for a dedicated teacher is the knowledge of knowing that she has made her students just a little brighter, smarter, and more well equipped to meet our changing world. In my case you can have this satisfaction. I'm not saying that I learned everything I could / should have, but you've taught me much. From you I learned understanding, perseverance, wisdom (a little) and 'Our Town'. May you experience the zenith of happiness in the coming years. If you ever need any typing done I'm ~~at~~ available.

Enclearingly yours

Andy Beck

Mrs. Calhoun,
As Mr. Barry would say, "This year has been a learning experience." I've never been in such a "verbal" class, but shall never forget it either. You have the rare ability to make learning fun,
and I admire your fortitude.
Best wishes to one of the greatest English teachers ever!
